Key Commodities

Navel Oranges

Imports: July – October from Chile, Peru, Uruguay, Australia & South Africa

Juicy and refreshing, Navel Oranges are considered by many to be the best oranges in the world for eating. These sweet, seedless oranges have a thick meaty flesh, with rinds that are easy to peel. Navel Oranges are characterized by the development of a small secondary fruit in the blossom end of the main fruit, which causes a small hole that resembles a navel.

Lemons

Imports: July – September from Chile, Mexico & Uruguay

Lemons are a versatile element of today's healthy diet. Though often too tart for eating, their juice can add zip and flavor to both sweet and savory foods. Lemons also cleanse the palate preparing the taste buds for the next flavor.

Mandarins - Clementines/Murcotts

Availability

Imports: June – October from Chile, Peru, Uruguay, Australia, South Africa, Morocco & Spain

Mandarins - Clementines/Murcotts are prized for their complex flavor and perfect balance between tartness and sweetness. They are a cross between a sweet orange and a Chinese mandarin, small in size, very sweet, and usually seedless. They are an excellent source of Vitamin C and Fiber.

Grapefruit

Domestic: Year Round Imports: January – Mid October from South Africa, Peru & Mexico

Grapefruit is named for the way the fruit grows in clusters ranging from medium to large, contains zero fat, cholesterol, iron or sodium, and is rich in vitamins and calcium. Whether you choose white to amber flesh of the Marsh White, the pink to reddish colored flesh of the Ruby Red, or the red flesh of the Flame, you'll get great taste, and a variety of health benefits.

Minneolas

Availability Domestic: Mid December - April

Imports: Mid July - September from Peru, Mexico & Australia

A cross between a grapefruit and a tangerine, Minneolas have a very unique flavor. Deep orange in color, full of juice, low on seeds, and very easy to peel.

Valencia Oranges

Domestic: February - October Imports: August – October from South Africa, Uruguay & Mexico

Valencia oranges are characterized by their thinner skin with some seeds. They are sweet and juicy, and excellent for juicing. Valencias are grown in California and Arizona, and are subject to what experts call "regreening". They begin to turn orange before they are fully sweet. As the weather becomes increasingly warm, chlorophyll begins to return to the surface of the skin turning it green on the stem end. The color of the skin has no effect on the sweetness of the fruit.
